1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan to address the problem. This involves identifying the actions that need to be taken to address the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Finally, the last step in the process is to implement the plan and monitor the results. This involves putting the plan into action and tracking the progress of the plan to ensure that the problem is being addressed effectively.

Mr. Shiber;

On 10-05-79 I went upon the grounds of Temco Parts Company and found them to be closed and out of business. The new owner Mr. Charles Casey stated that Temco Parts was closed in late March 1979. I asked if anything was left in the building that belonged to Temco Parts, Mr. Casey stated nothing belonged to Temco Parts. Our information is that the President of the Company ( Herbert Haschen ) has moved to Montana. If we can be of any further help please call.
